

We're special!

Edited by B.Blue

On a star amidst the vast universe, there was a group of children who dyed their hair purple. Nobody could join this group unless they perform a special ceremony.

Having his hair dyed purple, he is swearing to believe in the writing on the crystal.

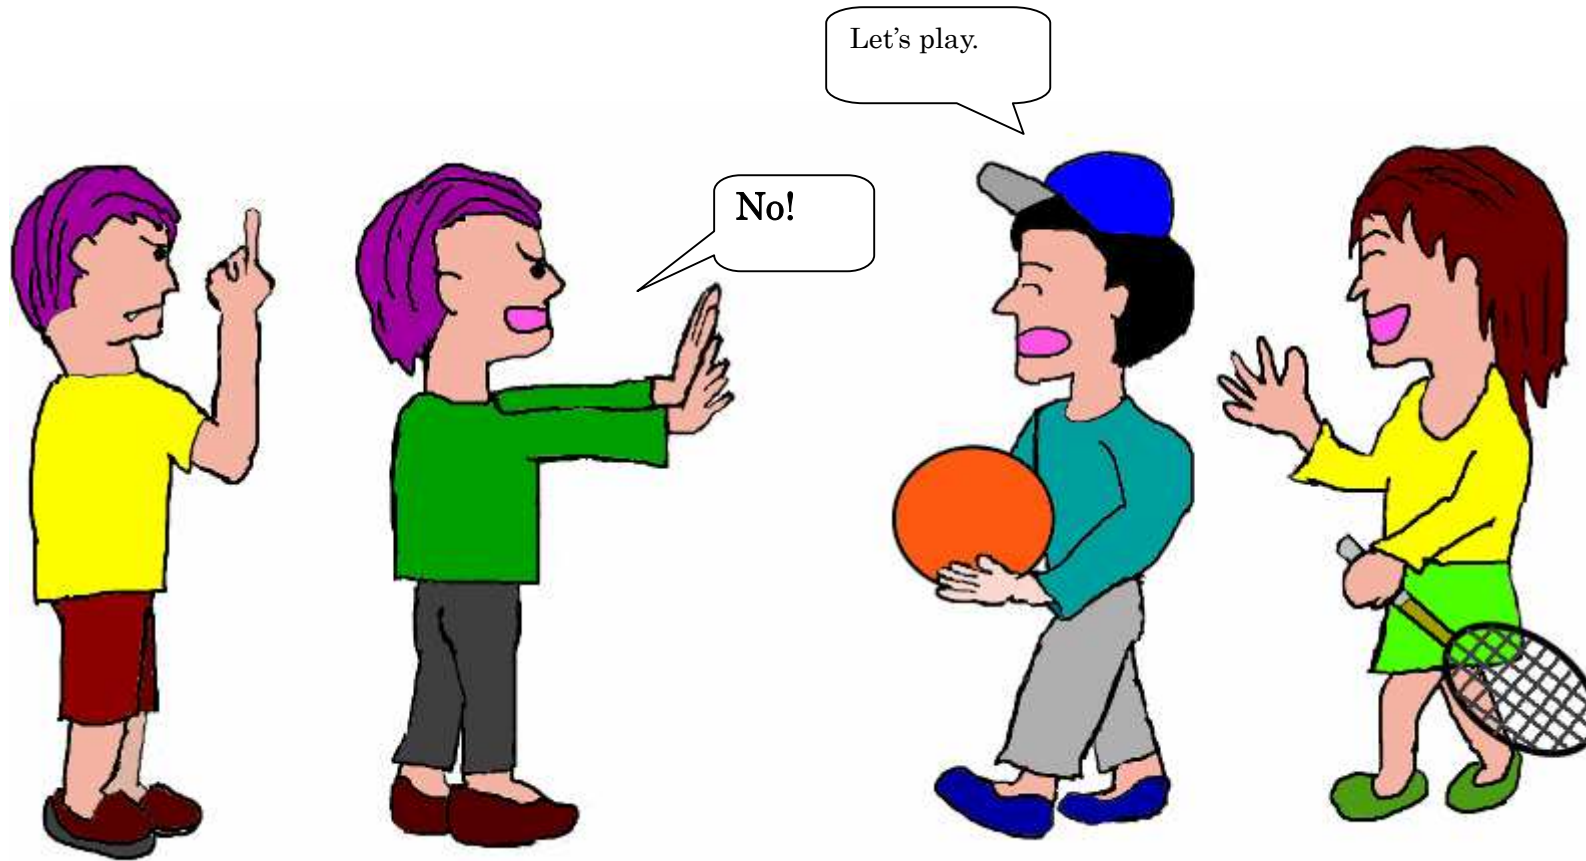

The writing says, "The purple ones are the chosen ones. All others are enemies."

Within the group, the children get along very well with each other.

However, they never get along with children who aren't members of their group.

This is because the writing on the crystal says that all others are enemies.

The other children were not very happy as they were treated as foes. They gradually began to dislike the purple children.

Even when the purple children got bullied, people turned a blind eye on them.

And so the purples were often harassed by the other children.

One day, the purple children decided to seize a park in the town. They thought that if they had their own park they would not get bullied.

The purples joined forces and expelled the others.

Now others couldn't use the park anymore.

We are special beings who are always getting bullied. That's why we need a park which is exclusively ours.

Go away! This park is for purples only!

Let us in the park!

The children who were expelled from the park called their friends and they all threw stones into the grounds.

Yikes! Ouch!

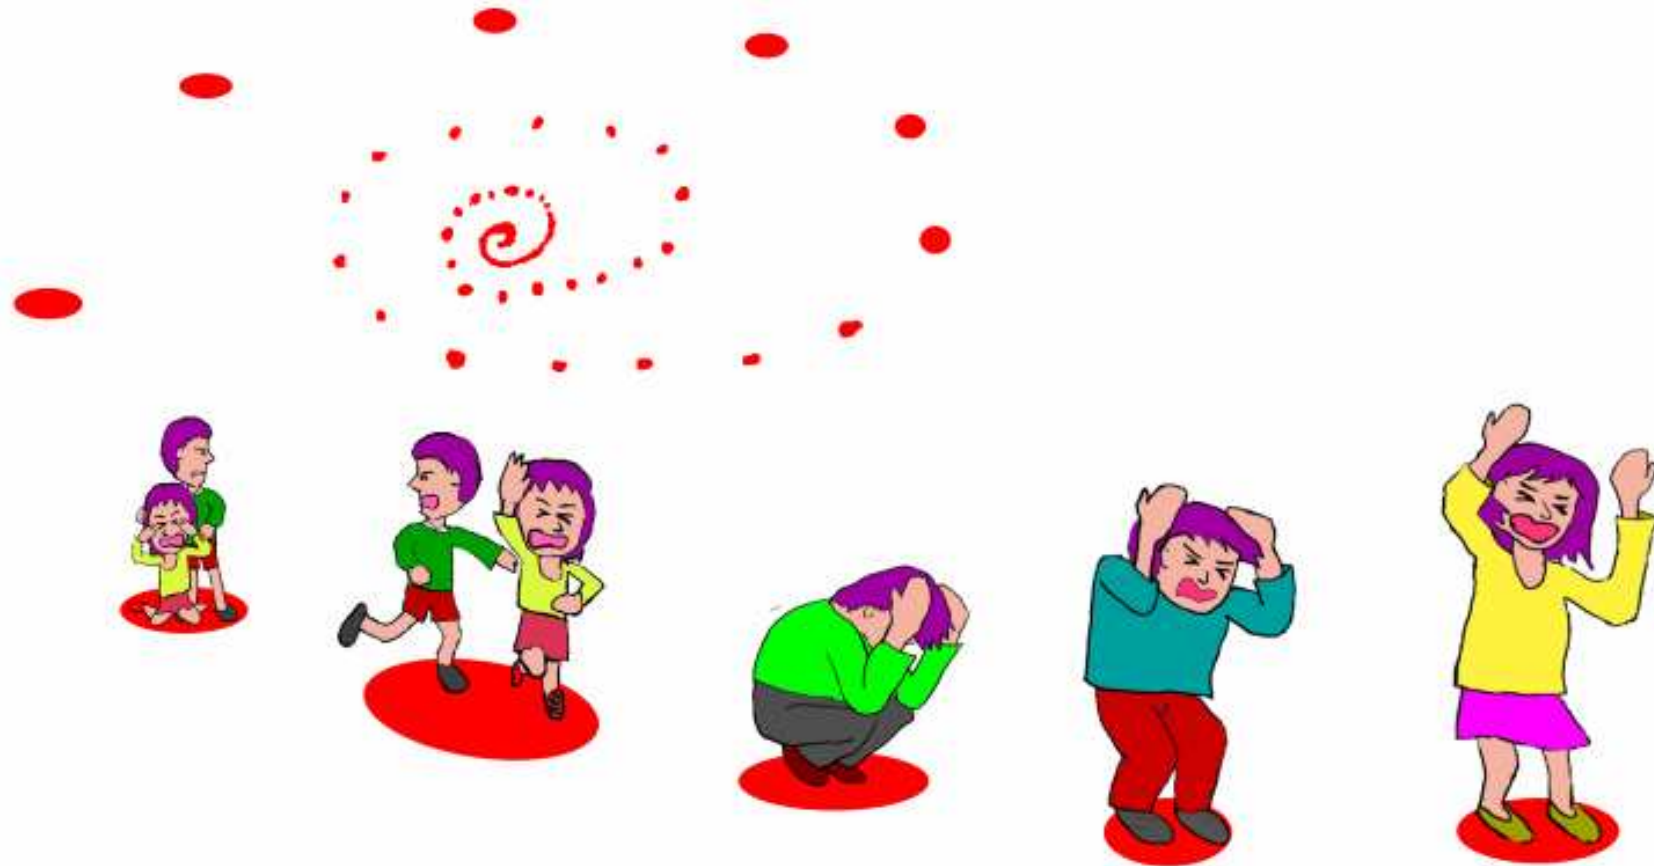

Why do we get picked on!

That's because we are special!

And so, the purple children on this planet were continually oppressed.

Unless something is done, they will be bullied for a long, long time, for even thousands of years.
How unfortunate they are! If you feel sympathy for them, why don't you tell them!

If you regard someone as your enemy, they will also regard you as their enemy!

If you occupy a park exclusively, you will be hated!

And it's not because you are special!!

Afterword

The illusion derived from stagnant victim consciousness and/or elite consciousness easily damages confidence among people and distorts human relationship. Then many tragedies take place.

I have written this picture book with the aim of reducing these tragedies on earth.
